It was a beautiful morning and I wasn't feeling too bad, so I drove to Wirksworth. I had a mark 1 compartment to myself so travelled south with a tea and couple of choccie bars. Some photos at Duffield before another mark 1 compartment back with a latte and an oat biscuit. A nice gentle ride, and it is a lovely line.

I had a wander round the shop and museum, then drove home via Ambergate. It was fun to be out, but I was knackered when I got home - rather frightened how tired I was. The final photo (below) is by James Hartley.
