RAILWAY 48

Salford Quays
Cornbrook
West Didsbury

Manchester Metrolink

We had to be at The Christie for 10 am on Wednesday, so had stayed at the Salford Quays Premier Inn. It seemed sensible to get the Metro, rather than try and park at the hospital. Ticket machine on our platform out of order, so I crossed over, and missed a tram while buying a ticket. I could have used the bank card and touched in/out, but don't think of that. There is a 2 car tram every 12 minutes - ridiculous - so it was crush-loaded. Thankfully it's only four stops. At Cornbrook we got on the line we had already done, and had much more space. 15 minutes walk to the hospital. Hannah drove us back - not much new track. These photos are not mine - once all this surgery is over, I will have to come back and explore the whole network - including bits I have never done - again.
